CODING PROJECTS

Video Game Sales Prediction AI Model | Python, pandas, Matplotlib

- Developed an end-to-end machine learning pipeline using pandas to predict global video game sales
- Compared decision-tree and random-forest regression models, analyzing feature importance and residuals to evaluate model performance and prevent overfitting
- Performed data analysis on complex trends and model performance metrics visualized using Matplotlib

Data Structures Implementations | C

- Engineered generic hash table and linked list ADTs in C using void* elements with function-pointer comparators and hash functions.
- Implemented collision-handling hash tables (linear probing with tombstone deletion, separate chaining) powering word-counting and deduplication tools
- Built a min-heap priority queue with insert and delete functions and a dynamic resizing array, using it to construct a Huffman coding tree for file compression
